Pastor's Note

One of the more surprising aspects of the Christian faith I encountered when I entered the Jesuits was the importance of friendships within the context of a shared faith. Growing up in the late 1970s and 80s the role of friendships and faith was not so central. I remember when the practice of shaking hands at the "Sign of Peace" became more a part of the Mass. My family would try and choose a pew that was towards the back and sit in the middle. This way, we would end up just shaking each other's hands. (What can I say, I come from a shy family). Entering the Jesuits, I was exposed to how Saint Ignatius of Loyola referred to fellow Jesuits. He called them "friends in the Lord." I was immediately attracted to this phrase. There was something about it that I both knew was true and was something I wanted.

The world in which we live, the Western World, has been described as post-Christian. This doesn't mean our faith has disappeared or is disappearing, rather it admits that our culture no longer shares the Christian values it once did. It also means that the practice and encouragement to practice one's faith is not nearly as strong. One can feel a loneliness in one's faith. Perhaps one finds oneself the only member of one's family who still goes to church? Maybe one's friends sort of look at you sideways when they hear of your faith practice? If we don't foster friendships and a sense of community, if we don't enjoy "friends in the Lord," we are depriving ourselves of something vital, of something God wills and desires us to have.

In the Second Reading from Saint Paul's Letter to Philemon, we hear him speaking tenderly of a good friend in faith. He calls Onesimus, his disciple and friend, his child. He describes him as "my own heart." And he asks the people to accept and treat Onesimus as if they were accepting and treating St. Paul. The sense of being on Christian mission, of living our faith in our minds and hearts, and in the world most often requires the cultivation and formation of Christian friendships. We need support and encouragement. For example, at our first parish BBQ, I remember the couple who were new to Newfoundland and the parish. They didn't know anyone. At the BBQ, however, they met another couple in a similar boat. They became the godparents to each other's children. We need the formation our friendships can provide. For example, hearing a group of parishioners reflect on the Gospel after having watched an episode of The Chosen. Or, seeing two parishioners share with each other their labour of love in making rosaries. One of the things I'm most grateful for at our new parish is how the community has come together and seems to be giving us all life. We are becoming a community of "friends in the Lord."

God bless and take care,
Fr. John

To See ✠ To Love ✠ To Serve

St. Ignatius of Loyola, in the Spiritual Exercises, prayed for the grace “to see thee more clearly, love thee more dearly and follow thee more nearly.” With clear and precise insight, St. Ignatius understood that to grow in holiness and be a disciple of Christ, one had to give one's whole self – the mind, the heart, and the will. When we work to deepen our understanding of who Christ is, when we commit ourselves to prayer and when we give of ourselves through service to others, we are responding in love to the One who has loved us first.

The parish offers different opportunities throughout the year to grow in love and keep Christ at the center of our lives. To See, To Love, To Serve encourages us all to keep the fire of faith growing through the deepening of our understanding, our prayer and our serving. We have some amazing opportunities planned for year, with something for everyone.
