Pastor's Note

I understand the redemption Christ has offered and given through experience. Sometimes we may have an argument and maybe we said things we're embarrassed by or feel guilt and shame. On the other hand, maybe we were hurt by the words or actions of another. Probably, it's a mixture of both. In such a situation, what do we tend to do? I know for myself, I can become distant, giving and receiving "the silent treatment." As each silent interaction occurs, each time we pass each other or meet in the kitchen without saying a word, the tension, anger and regret mount. Often, both people want the silence to end, for someone to take the first step and "break the ice." But the mounting tension, anger and regret make it more difficult to do so. We may think, "For God's sake, just say something!" But this is for the other person, not oneself. Eventually, someone finally does "break the ice" – differences are aired, hurts admitted and reconciliation attempted. For me, this resembles periods of our relationship with God. We've thought, said or done things we regret, are shameful of. Suspecting God's immense displeasure, we keep our head down, distancing ourselves from God and remaining silent with him. This self-imposed tension in our relationship is broken by Jesus Christ, "the firstborn of all creation."

Wishing Fr. Joe Schuck the Best

Fr. Joe Schuck, S.J. is moving. He has been missioned as chaplain to the Jesuit Fathers in the infirmary in Pickering, Ontario.

There will be an afternoon drop-in next Sunday, November 30th in the afternoon from 2pm to 4pm in the foyer of the church for anyone wishing to see Fr. Joe before he leaves.

Join us as in expressing our gratitude for his presence and service in St. John's and in our parish community.

The silence or distance we create suspecting God's displeasure is a terribly sad moment of human life. It is sad because it is unnecessary and contrary to God's will and desire. Saint Paul writes, "Christ is the image of the invisible God." To hear and see Christ is to hear and see the Father. He continues, "in Christ all the fullness of God was pleased to dwell, and through him God was pleased to reconcile to himself all things, whether on earth or in heaven, by making peace through the blood of his Cross." There is silence and distance. God, however, takes the first step. He steps onto Calvary and lies on the Cross. Here is the truth revealed, it exposes the lie of the Evil One. No need for silence or distance, "making peace through the blood of his Cross" is the most powerful and powerfully convincing way to unveil the immeasurable depths of God's love for each of us. To know and believe that one is always and everywhere loved by the Father – this is to be redeemed. To be loved without limits evokes our desire to love back without limits. And if we don't succeed (in this life we won't) but we still try and try even more. Love never ends.

God bless and take care,
Fr. John

John will give five recorded talks which will be made available to you through our website, our Youtube channel and flocknote. *We had a little difficulty in our scheduling and so we have revised the dates for The Daily Examen.
